

Jessica Wieder is a public affairs specialist with the federal government, focusing on radiological/nuclear emergency response. She has spent the last seven years working in EPA's Radiation Protection Division as a public information officer for EPA's Radiological Emergency Response Team. In 2010, Jessica spent six months detailed to FEMA's Chemical, Biological, Radiological, Nuclear and Explosives Branch, helping establish their Improvised Nuclear Device Response and Recovery Program. Jessica leads an interagency group developing a document called Nuclear Detonation Preparedness: Communicating in the Immediate Aftermath, containing Q&As that can be used directly after a nuclear detonation and she wrote the communications chapter for the second edition of the White House's Planning Guidance for Response to a Nuclear Detonation.